Message from the Chairman

I'm pleased to present the SIL Mutual Fund Personal Lump Sum Scheme annual report for the year ended 30 June 2023.

It was a challenging year as global financial markets faced many headwinds from high inflation and rising interest rates. Despite this, all of the funds that make up the SIL Mutual Fund Personal Lump Sum Scheme delivered strong returns, with the exception of the New Zealand Fixed Interest Fund, which delivered a small loss.

Following a hesitant 2022, international equity markets staged a solid recovery in 2023, driven by the particularly strong performance of the information technology sector. The prospect that interest rates were at or close to a peak was supportive during the second half of the period, allowing this asset class to deliver good gains over the year as a whole. The International Share Fund returned 17.98%*.

New Zealand shares followed the lead of their international counterparts. However, they were unable to match their performance given a slowing New Zealand economy, which narrowly avoided a recession in the early part of 2023 following aggressive rate hikes from the Reserve Bank of New Zealand. Against this backdrop, the New Zealand Share Fund returned 9.28%*.

Elsewhere, bond markets struggled as central banks around the world continued raising interest rates aggressively in an attempt to get inflation down. Bond markets tend to underperform when interest rates rise unexpectedly, or by more than expected. It meant the New Zealand Fixed Interest Fund returned a small decline of 0.01%. Meanwhile, cash continued to deliver steady returns with low investment risk, allowing the Cash Plus Fund to return 3.93%.

Finally, the Balanced Plus Fund returned 7.97%*, benefiting from its exposure to growth investments, such as international and New Zealand shares.

Uncertainty in financial markets remains

Since the end of the period covered by this annual report, financial markets have delivered mixed results given the level of uncertainty around economic growth and the outlook for interest rates.

While inflation has eased, central banks have said that interest rates will likely stay higher for longer, and some have not ruled out further hikes. Although there are signs that global growth is starting to slow, the resilient jobs market in most developed economies should help avoid a significant economic shock, should the global growth slowdown persist.

Whatever happens in financial markets during these challenging times, we'd remind you to check that you're invested mindful of your investment timeframe and your appetite for risk, and that all of the funds have delivered gains over the 5 and 10-year periods.

Chairman,
Superannuation Investments Limited
